DECLARATION OF ADAM TALAAT

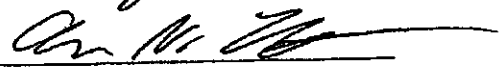

Adam Talaat declares:

1. I am over 18 years of age and am not a party to this action. I have personal knowledge of the following facts and if called as a witness, I could and would competently testify thereto.
2. I am the Vice President of Technology for Illumen. Illumen is a real-time information source that employs new concepts and capabilities in web-based technology. As such, Illumen continuously monitors more than 7,000 national and international sources for what its subscribers have identified, individually, as "must have" business information.
3. On or about Monday and Tuesday, December 1 and 2, 2003, I conducted a search of our sources for articles mentioning "Scott Peterson" or "Laci Peterson" in reference to the Stanislaus County (California) Superior Court case of People v. Scott Lee Peterson, case no. 1056770. The search was conducted for the dates of December 26, 2002 to the present. My initial findings reveal over eight thousand (8,000) individual articles that would consist of approximately 10,000 – 12,000 pages of printed text.

4. It should be kept in mind that my search did not include all media sources, only those continuously monitored by Illumen.

I declare under penalty of perjury of the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed this 2nd day of December 2003 at Washington DC.

SEARCH TIPS

Search Engine Tips

To ensure a successful search, create your search string with the following guidelines in mind:

The search engine treats spaces between words as 'AND' criteria. This means that as more words are entered into the search box, the search becomes more specific and will return less results. Therefore, if you are having trouble finding what you are looking for, try being less specific in your query to increase your chances of finding the item you want.

Handy Tools

A handy tool for searching within a page of search results is your browser's own search functionality. If you are using Internet Explorer or Netscape Navigator, you may press Control-F to activate this feature.

Logical Operators

You may use the logical operators AND, OR, NOT, or NEAR to further refine your search. Using AND and NEAR limits the search scope by requiring the joined words to both exist in the same document. OR expands the search scope - either the first word or the second (or both) may exist in the document. NOT is used to limit the search scope -- for example, 'baseball NOT Yankees' will return all baseball stories that do not contain the word 'Yankees.'

Symbol Substitution

The symbols + and & may be substituted for AND; |

Scott Peterson's attorney wants $15,000 returned

Author: MODESTO BEE

Date: November 20, 2003

Publication: Tri-Valley Herald (Pleasanton, CA)

MODESTO -- Stanislaus County Superior Court Judge Al Girolami plans to hear arguments on releasing two pieces of evidence Dec. 3, when Scott Peterson is to be arraigned on the double-murder charges upheld Tuesday at his preliminary hearing.

Defense attorney Mark Geragos asked prosecutors to release the $15,000 cash Peterson had with him when he was arrested and Peterson's Ford pickup, which police seized in December.

It's an expensive task for the family to fund this, he said. It

DECLARATION OF PAUL STRAND

I, Paul Strand, Ph.D., declare as follows:

1. I have personal knowledge of the following facts, and if called to do so, could and would testify competently as follows.

2. I am a professor of Political Science at San Diego State University. From 1989 - 2003, I was the dean of the College of Arts and Letters at San Diego State University. I attained a Doctorate Degree in Political Science at Ohio State University in 1975. I have been involved in the field of survey research, including designing survey instruments, drawing survey samples, and analyzing survey results, for over 25 years. I have been qualified and have testified as an expert on potential juror awareness and predisposition, and on survey protocol, design, and interpretation, on numerous occasions. A copy of my Curriculum Vitae is attached.

3. I directed San Diego State University's Social Science Research Laboratory for ten years prior to being appointed as Dean of the College of Arts and Letters. San Diego State University's Social Science Research Laboratory is a state-of-the-art survey research and public opinion polling facility. One of its areas of emphasis is testing for potential juror pool awareness and predisposition.

4. On December 3, 2003, I was retained by the Law Offices of Geragos & Geragos to perform surveys to test community awareness and predisposition regarding the case of People v. Scott Peterson. I personally set up the testing protocol and contents, and I supervised polling conducted by San Diego State University's Social Science Research Laboratory, to ensure that the testing complied with standard public opinion research guidelines and practices.

5. Our survey was conducted during the second week of December 2003, in Stanislaus County. Data were drawn from telephone interviews with three hundred respondents, who were questioned and determined to be adults qualified to serve as jurors in Stanislaus County. The sampling error associated with samples of this size (300 respondents per survey) is approximately plus or minus 5.5 percent or less.

6. I personally reviewed and interpreted the data received, and have come to the following conclusions:

a) The December 2003 Stanislaus County survey indicated that nearly ninety eight percent (98%) of the respondents were aware of a criminal case involving Scott Peterson. Thirty nine percent (39%) said they believed Mr. Peterson was guilty of these crimes. A copy of the results of this December 2003 survey will be provided to the Court as early as next week.

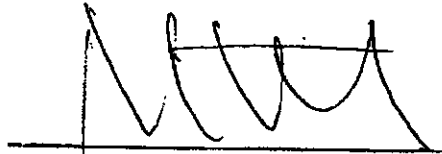

b) The survey results in December 2003 indicate that a significant percentage of Stanislaus County have prejudgments about Mr. Peterson.

c) Given the high levels of awareness and admitted predisposition in this case, there is a high likelihood that the defendant will be unable to select a fair and impartial jury. The likelihood that one or more biased juror will penetrate the protection offered by judicial voir dire is extremely high.

7. Given the high level of awareness and predisposition in Stanislaus County, it is my opinion that, despite the best intentioned voir dire screening, it is more likely that a juror with a negatively predisposed view of Mr. Peterson's guilt could be seated on his jury in Stanislaus County. Further, it is my opinion that, given the very high level of awareness and predisposition in Stanislaus County, judicial instruction to dispel existing predisposition or bias would be doubtful efficacy.

I declare the following under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California.

Given this 11th day of December, 2003 at San Diego, California.

Peterson Case Venue Study

Stanislaus County

December 2003

Prepared by Paul J. Strand, Ph.D.

INTRODUCTION AND METHODOLOGY

This study was designed to measure the levels of case awareness and admitted predisposition regarding a criminal case in which Scott Lee Peterson is accused of murdering his wife and unborn son. The data described in this report were drawn from telephone interviews with 301 residents of Stanislaus County. All of the interviews were conducted during the first and second weeks of December 2003. Respondents were either registered to vote, or were U.S. citizens, eighteen years of age or older, with either a valid California driver's license or identification card. Persons who reported being convicted of a felony or who refused to respond to this question were excluded from the sample.

The sample of telephone numbers used in the survey was generated by a computer program using a random digit selection technique. This technique ensures that unlisted numbers, as well as listed and recently listed numbers, have an equal probability of inclusion in the sample. The sampling error associated with samples of this size (Stanislaus County, N=301) is equal to or less than plus/minus 5.6%, at a confidence level of 95%.

In addition to questions regarding the Peterson case, each survey contained questions regarding a fictitious case. These questions were included in the survey design to control for the possibility of respondents offering false information through acquiescent responses. Accordingly, respondents who gave acquiescent responses can be removed from the sample and excluded from the analysis, and awareness and predisposition figures for the Peterson case recalculated.

This report provides a summary of results for the study. A complete distribution of responses for all survey questions is provided in Appendix A and a copy of the survey instrument is provided in Appendix B. Percentages may not total 100% due to rounding error.

SUMMARY

Ninety-eight percent (N=296) of respondents said that they have heard about this case. Among those who were aware of the Peterson case, nearly 39% (N=114) believed that the defendant did commit this crime, nearly 3% (N=8) believed that the defendant did not commit this crime, nearly 56% (N=165) would need more information to decide, and 3% (N=9) did not respond. These same figures represent nearly 38%, nearly 3%, nearly 55%, and 3% of all respondents, respectively.

The respondents were also asked about a fictitious criminal case involving a stabbing death. Nearly 20% (N=60) of respondents said that they have heard about this fictitious case. After respondents who indicated that they were aware of the fictitious case were removed from the analysis, nearly 98% (N=236) said that they were aware of the Peterson case. Among these respondents, nearly 36% (N=84) believed that Scott Peterson did commit this crime, 3% (N=7) believed that he did not commit this crime, nearly 59% (N=138) would need more information to decide, and 3% (N=7) did not respond. These figures represent nearly 35%, nearly 3%, 57%, and nearly 3% of the total adjusted sample, respectively. These results are not significantly different than those obtained from the entire sample.
